Instructions: Read the passage.

A small boy named Floyd woke up one morning to a loud noise. He jumped out of bed with a shout and ran downstairs. He found his mother in the kitchen. She was frowning and pointing at a brown kitten. The kitten was up on the counter. Down on the ground was his mother's big round flower pot. There was soil all over the place! She picked up the flower pot and looked at it. "Wow!" she said. It doesn't seem to be broken. "Our silly brown kitten must have been prowling on the counter. Maybe he was looking for his toy" she said. "He's such a clown!"

"Or maybe he was scowling at the clouds!" said the boy, as he looked out and saw rain showers. The rain was coming down so hard it looked like it would drown the garden. The boy opened his mouth to say something about it, but the kitten started to meow. "Come down here and join us!" he said. "After we clean up the soil, we'll make some fish chowder!"
