Grade 1: Module 3: Cycle 17

Overview

Introduced in This Cycle

CVCe words with "u" and "e"

High-Frequency Words

"kind," "many," "these," "too," "your," "take"

Cycle Word List

In this cycle, students continue to work with the CVCe pattern focusing heavily on "u_e" and "e_e." As with the previous two cycles, this begins with one-syllable words with and without consonant blends, uses the suffix "-s" (where dropping the "e" is not required) and offers extensions with two-syllable words. The rule about dropping the "e" when adding a vowel suffix continues to be offered here as an extension as well but is introduced explicitly later in the module. Examples of words used in this cycle include:

cube	rude	eve
flute	rule	Pete
huge	tube	cone
June	use	joke
plume	here	shape

Lesson 86 Teaching Notes

Purpose of lesson and alignment to standards:

- In Work Time A, students learn that the silent "e" changes the vowel sounds for "e" from /e/ to /ē/ and /u/ to /ū/. Revisit vowel identification in words whenever possible; this supports skills in open multisyllabic words. Add /ē/ and /ū/ words to the CVCe anchor chart throughout the year.

- Exaggerate the articulation of the /ē/ compared to /e/ and /ū/ compared to /u/. Have students note the differences in their mouth movements/position in the two sounds. This supports the move to decoding later in Work Time A, when students segment sounds in written words.

How it builds on previous work:

- During Cycle 13, students were introduced to the Vowel House to explore open syllables. The same instructional practice is used in this lesson as the CVCe pattern is introduced with the vowels "e" and "u."

- In previous cycles, students built knowledge of short vowels with the Chaining instructional practice. This familiar practice is revisited for the introduction of the /ē/ and /ū/ vowel sounds in this lesson.

Down the road:

- In the Closing, students reflect on their daily progress toward becoming more proficient readers. Throughout the module, guide students toward more specific responses (example: "I practiced looking for the silent 'e' at the end of words, and that is one of my goals for reading"). Consider asking students to name how they also are building habits of character (examples: persevering, listening to a partner).

Lesson 87 — Teaching Notes

Purpose of lesson and alignment to standards:

- In Opening B, consider asking students suggested (or similar) text-based comprehension questions. Because these questions will likely extend the Opening beyond 5 minutes, they are optional. Consider adjusting differentiated small group instruction time accordingly.

- In Work Time A, students are introduced to high-frequency words. This practice explicitly teaches the high-frequency words students see in the Decodable Reader. Some of the words are decodable, ("these") or regularly spelled but not easily decodable because they include spelling patterns that have not yet been taught ("many," "too"). Because students cannot yet easily apply what they have learned about the phonemes from this cycle, these words are treated for now as "words that don't play fair." The last group of words includes irregularly spelled words ("kind," "your"). Add all of these words to the Interactive High-Frequency Word Wall once they have been introduced. Consider differentiating between regularly spelled words and "words that don't play fair" by using different colored papers or fonts.

- In Work Time B, although students may naturally decode some of the words as they work with the Decodable Reader for the first time, avoid guiding them to do so during the "search" portion of the activity. The search serves as a review to support students as they apply learned letter-sound connections during the partner "read" portion.

- Pairing students during the Decodable Reader routine provides support for those who need it and engages more proficient students to apply their knowledge to support a peer. Have students work individually if you prefer that they receive more individual practice without peer guidance or support.

- Consider how to collect data on how well students use high-frequency word knowledge and decoding skills while reading their Decodable Readers. Two options: record anecdotal notes that identify strategies being used or miscues made (examples: "reread the sentence," "read /u/ for /ū/"), or ask students to mark words they find challenging.

How it builds on previous work:

- Students apply what they have learned about CVCe spelling patterns in this cycle to decoding CVCe words with /ū/, /ō/, and /ā/ in the Decodable Reader.

Down the road:

- In the Closing, students reflect on their daily progress toward becoming more proficient readers. Throughout the module, guide students toward more specific responses (example: "I practiced looking for the magic 'e,' and that is one of my goals for reading"). Consider asking students to name how they are building habits of character (examples: persevering, listening to partner).

Lesson 88   Teaching Notes

Purpose of lesson and alignment to standards:

- In this lesson, students continue working with CVCe pattern words using "e" and "u" in this familiar instructional practice.

How it builds on previous work:

- This lesson continues work with the CVCe words in Cycle 16.

Down the road:

- In the Closing, students reflect on their daily progress toward becoming more proficient readers. Throughout the module, guide students toward more specific responses (example: "I practiced looking for the magic 'e,' and that is one of my goals for reading"). Consider directing students to name character traits/work habits (examples: persevering, listening to a partner).

Lesson 89   Teaching Notes

Purpose of lesson and alignment to standards:

- In Opening A, students use their knowledge of closed and open syllables to sort words based on syllable type. This practice reinforces the skill of identifying vowel sounds to determine the syllables in multisyllabic words.

- In Work Time A, students apply their growing knowledge of letter-sound connections to writing words, by working on a shared sentence from the decodable text or content from the Integrated Literacy Block. Through interactive writing, students consider capitalization, spacing, and punctuation as they construct the sentence (L.1.2) and continue to practice high-frequency words to commit them to memory. Students continue working with the CVCe spelling pattern in words with the vowels "e" and "u." The relationship between decoding and spelling (encoding) regularly spelled words is complementary; the two processes support and strengthen each other. Consider saving the finished piece to use for shared reading, collecting it as part of a big book, or posting it somewhere in the classroom for students to "read the room."

- In Work Time A, students write previously read words. Because these words are familiar and the finished product might be used again or posted in the classroom, spellings should be accurate, not invented. Encourage students to recall the specific graphemes (letters) that represent those phonemes in that word. The goal is for them to develop automaticity with the correct spelling and pronunciation of each word. If students write the incorrect grapheme, encourage them to listen again or ask a friend for help, then rewrite (use correction tape or masking tape to cover up the original letter).

- Consider recording the sentences produced each week during interactive writing on chart paper, sentence strips, or some other method so those sentences can be displayed and practiced by the group, in pairs, or individually. Also consider cutting up sentence strips and then reconstructing them for re-teaching or additional practice. Or cut parts of words apart to provide further extension and/or to draw attention to specific features of a word.

How it builds on previous work:

- This lesson continues work with the CVCe spelling pattern that has been used throughout Cycles 14, 15, and 16 (to decode in isolation, read in a text, and spell words). Students now apply all of these skills to construct a shared sentence that also reinforces words from the decodable text.

Down the road:

- In the Closing, students reflect on their daily progress toward becoming more proficient readers. Throughout the module, guide students toward more specific responses (example: "I practiced looking for the magic 'e,' and that is one of my goals for reading"). Consider directing students to name character traits/work habits (examples: persevering, listening to a partner).

Lesson 90 | Teaching Notes

Purpose of lesson and alignment to standards:

- Work Time A for this lesson, as with all assessment lessons, involves extended differentiated small group instruction to accommodate an additional teacher meeting with each group to administer the cycle assessment. Assessments are on-demand and scored immediately so students can see their score, track their progress, and possibly revise their personal goals for the module accordingly.

How it builds on previous work:

- This lesson is the final lesson in the cycle. During Work Time A, students complete the Cycle 17 Assessment, where they use the letters and sounds learned in the cycle to decode and spell words.
